It was subsequently identified as being issued to a car owned by [redacted] b6 b7C [redacted] who was temporarily employed in Boston, Massachusetts on loan from his Toronto employer during the period January through October, 1970. Further the reported loss of the plate in question was made to the Toronto Police Department on October 9, 1970. [redacted] at the time he was working in the Boston, Massachusetts area was living at the Boston YMCA where subject GILDAY was also living.

Upon receipt of the information of the involvement of subjects BOND, GILDAY and VALERI, investigation determined that all three of these individuals were parolees from Massachusetts Correctional Institutions and while in prison were involved in the STEP program which resulted in their early release from prison. Subject BOND was attending Brandeis University in Waltham, Massachusetts in the STEP program and subjects VALERI and GILDAY were enrolled at Northeastern University in Boston, Massachusetts.

On the evening of September 23, 1970, ROBERT JOSEPH VALERI was arrested by the Boston, Massachusetts Police Department at the residence of his grandmother, 17 Grandview Avenue, Somerville, Massachusetts and in substance furnished the following information.

VALERI stated that the people responsible for the robbery of the State Street Bank and Trust Company, 300 Western Avenue, Boston, Massachusetts on September 23, 1970 were also responsible for other criminal acts, however, they did not view these acts as criminal in nature but viewed them as justifiable acts to further their revolutionary causes. He stated that these people are a part of a group of individuals located throughout the country who have similar attitudes. VALERI stated that these individuals were engaging in what they term as a revolution and the criminal activities were either a symbolic act or a means to finance their organization. By a symbolic act, VALERI explained that the group wanted to do away with the different classes of people inasmuch as approximately five percent of the people were very wealthy and a much larger percentage were very poor, that these individuals had an idealistic attitude that they could develop a common class citizenry and that their criminal acts were aimed at attacking the upper class society or at military or governmental establishments. He stated that they intended to attack the police powers and to undermine the military structure in the United States.

VALERI stated that he first became acquainted with this type of attitude while incarcerated at MCI Walpole with STANLEY BOND. BOND developed a far left attitude and was completely disenchanted with the present form of government, police structure and military organization and that he had definitely viewed himself as a revolutionary. VALERI also met WILLIAM GILDAY while in prison and following their release, BOND, GILDAY and VALERI continued their association inasmuch as they were all enrolled in the Student Tutor Educational Program (STEP) with BOND attending Brandeis University and GILDAY and VALERI attending Northeastern University. While BOND was enrolled at Brandeis, he engaged both directly and indirectly with individuals who possessed similar views concerning our governmental structure. It was during this time that they began discussing ways of obtaining money to finance this organization and VALERI became acquainted with other individuals who he had met through BOND. VALERI then decided that these individuals were so intent on accomplishing their goals that he felt that they were a definite threat to society. He stated that because of this he joined the group to eventually assist the government in undermining the group. VALERI stated that his intentions were to collect as much information about these people as far as names, address and organization structure as he possibly could after which time he intended to go to the CIA or FBI with this information.

He originally joined with them with the attitude of being an indirect participant, however, these plans were altered and he became a direct participant and "worked up front". They had discussed going underground and violating their parole and operating "up front" while underground.

VALERI stated that the individuals involved in the State Street Bank and Trust Company bank robbery were all members of this organization and they shared similar views. VALERI stated that in addition to himself, BOND and GILDAY, two girls from this group were involved. VALERI was hesitant to identify the girls at this particular time and he stated he was trying to resolve in his own mind the best way in which he could help undercover this organization. He stated that by not answering any questions at this time that he could still rejoin this group and find out additional information which he did not possess at the present time. He felt that he could possibly escape and rejoin these people and operate underground and obtain the necessary information for the federal authorities to assist in their investigation of these people. He stated at the present time he did not know of specific names but he did know that these people had professed to him to have connections throughout the United States. VALERI stated it was his full intention to cooperate with the authorities and that he must determine which would be the most beneficial to the government.

VALERI stated he was sure all of the people that participated in this bank robbery would be difficult to find because of their political connections throughout the United States and once they went underground, people throughout the country would hide them. He stated, however, that one of the individuals, GILDAY, may not be entirely honest as to his viewpoints and that he may not be in the organization for a cause but more for personal financial gain. In this regard VALERI explained that the proceeds of their criminal activities were not divided equally amongst them but that the proceeds were handled by BOND who dispersed them to all members of the group on a need basis and that if they needed money, BOND would dole the money out to them but there was "no cut" of the proceeds of the criminal activities.

VALERI stated that he was not aware of BOND or GILDAY's present locations.

VALERI was questioned concerning the location of the car that was used in this robbery. VALERI stated that the car that was used by GILDAY was a 1970 white Rambler four door which had been rented in New Jersey and bore New Jersey license plates and that the car was presently in a parking lot adjacent to Tufts University in Medford, Massachusetts.

BS 91-4219

On the basis of the information furnished by VALERI, the Boston Police Department early in the morning of September 24, 1970 recovered the 1970 Ambassador bearing New Jersey registration [redacted] near the lower parking lot at Tufts University, Medford, Massachusetts which was the information furnished by VALERI. Subsequently this car was identified as a rental car, hired from Car Rental Inc., Piscataway, New Jersey on September 21, 1970 to an [redacted]. This vehicle was processed by the Boston, Massachusetts Police Department.

On the morning of September 24, 1970, subject VALERI identified GILDAY as the individual who shot police officer WALTER SCHROEDER. Subsequently on the day after, Officer WALTER SCHROEDER died from wounds received at the bank robbery scene, VALERI identified the participants as WILLIAM MORRILL GILDAY, also known as LEFTY; STANLEY RAY BOND; [redacted]. He identified [redacted] as the individual who accompanied himself and BOND into the bank and [redacted] was the driver of the switch car which was a 1961 or 1962 Ford, light colored station wagon which had been purchased by subject GILDAY a few days prior to the bank robbery.

VALERI described the planning of this robbery as taking place on September 22, 1970 during which time all of the above participants were present and additionally [redacted] was present. The discussion of the robbery took place at 337 Beacon Street which was an apartment rented by STANLEY BOND. After formulating the plans of the robbery for the next day, BOND and [redacted] went to [redacted] apartment at [redacted] where they spent the night. GILDAY, VALERI, [redacted] spent the night at BOND's apartment at 337 Beacon Street. On the morning of the robbery, [redacted] and BOND returned to 337 Beacon Street and the weapons were loaded into the cars. They drove in a caravan to the vicinity of the bank with GILDAY driving the Rambler, VALERI driving the white Ford station wagon to the vicinity of the bank and BOND driving the Chevrolet with [redacted] with him. After arriving in the area, VALERI parked the Ford station wagon at a point designated by BOND. He then go out and walked back to the blue Chevrolet and got in with [ ] and BOND. [ ] got out and walked up and got into the Ford station wagon. GILDAY was parked across from the Chevrolet and he got out of the car and walked over and started to talk with the occupants of the Chevrolet. BOND told GILDAY to go and station himself at his position across from the bank. It was originally decided that GILDAY would park the car facing the bank across the street, however, when they arrived at the bank they saw that GILDAY had parked the car on Western Avenue diagonally across the street from the bank. They drove to the area of the bank and [ ] got out of the car and went into the bank to determine if the vault was open. After returning to the car they drove around the block and came into the bank turning into the bank in the parking lot behind off the side street and pulled in front of the rear door facing out on to Western Avenue. They got out of the car and went into the bank with BOND, [ ] and VALERI going inside.

Once inside the bank, each of these three individuals positioned themselves as described above. Shortly after entering the bank, BOND fired two shots over the tellers heads warning that they move faster. BOND had forgotten the bag to put the money in and so he requested the tellers to use their own bags. When the money was placed on the counter some of it fell on to the floor and VALERI walked over and picked it up and put it into his pockets. They then departed the bank leaving in the blue Chevrolet and turned right on to Western Avenue. They went to the area of where [ ] was parked in a station wagon and drove away from the area in the Ford station wagon. [ ] were in the front seat of the car and BOND and VALERI were in the back seat and were covered up with a blanket. They dropped [ ] off at a shopping center which he believes was located on Route 9 and VALERI got out of the car at Robert Station in Waltham in the vicinity of Brandeis University where he took a train to North Station and from North Station he took the subway to Copley Square and then walked over to the apartment at [ ].

As he arrived [REDACTED], BOND was counting the money. VALERI inquired as to how much they had gotten and BOND replied that it was a [REDACTED]

VALERI also added that during the time they were departing the bank they heard a newscast of the robbery which stated that a police officer had been shot. BOND and VALERI were discussing the shooting in the apartment when GILDAY arrived. GILDAY came in and BOND and VALERI asked him what happened in connection with the shooting of the police officer. GILDAY stated that he waited around after they had departed the bank and the police arrived. When they got out of their marked cruiser, he opened up on them hitting one of them. During the time that he was firing at the police officers, a large truck moving on Western Avenue would have obscured his vision of the bank and the police officer so GILDAY turned the gun on the truck forcing it to stop. He then turned the gun on to the bank and emptied the entire clip into the area in the vicinity of the bank. At about this time [REDACTED] arrived at the apartment with some clothing that he had purchased. There was some additional discussion concerning the robbery and the shooting and then VALERI left with the understanding that they would meet again that evening and make arrangements to leave town.

He also furnished the following information concerning the political philosophy of the group who participated in this robbery.

He is part of a group in Boston consisting of approximately six individuals who are part of a group who have formed a loosely knit organization aimed at breaking down the military structure and furthermore intending to eliminate police powers as soon as possible. This group has no official name nor any official headquarters. There is no membership list nor any official organ. There is no organizational structure although one individual on most occasions assumes leadership. This person is STANLEY BOND.

The group has counterparts throughout the country and most major cities, however, VALERI is unaware of what cities or who these individuals are.

VALERI advised that on the previous day, September 23, 1970, he and four other individuals took part in the armed robbery of a bank in Brighton, Massachusetts which resulted in the slaying of a Boston Police officer. He advised that the other individuals who took part in this robbery and who are part of the above mentioned group are as follows:

STANLEY BOND, a student at Brandeis University

WILLIAM GILDAY, a former inmate of Walpole State Prison, Walpole, Massachusetts and a part time student

b7C

[redacted] both of whom are students of Brandeis University and who are associated with the National Strike Information Center (NSIC) at Brandeis University, Waltham, Massachusetts. Both of these girls were active in the National Student Strike which came about during the early part of May, 1970, as a result of President NIXON's decision to enter Cambodia and furthermore, the slaying of four Kent State, Ohio students.

He further mentioned an individual named [redacted] who was associated with the NSIC and Brandeis University. He advised, however, that [redacted] although a member of this loosely knit organization of which VALERI was a part of, did not take part in the bank robbery at Brighton, Massachusetts on September 20, 1970. He does not know where [redacted] resides at this time.

He further advised that a white female, [redacted] (last name unknown) also associated with this organization, is formerly of Brandeis University and her present whereabouts is unknown.

VALERI also mentioned a white female residing in New York who was sympathetic towards this group whom he classifies as a "radical leftist", however she has no direct connection with this group. He identified her as [redacted]

He advised that [redacted] is from Portland, Oregon, however, he is not aware if there is a similar group located in that city.

He advised that there is an individual connected with their organization who lives in Philadelphia and is a demolitions expert. His first name is [ ] and he did not know his last name or his address.

The group of which VALERI is a part of rarely makes use of narcotics, however, smoke marijuana on occasion. He also advised that STANLEY BOND makes frequent use of librium to settle his nerves.

For the most part the group has used an apartment located at 337 Beacon Street in the Back Bay section of Boston as a central point for meetings, etc. However, this address was not used as a collective nor does this group normally live as a collective. This apartment is rented in the name of STANLEY BOND.

The group of which VALERI is a part of has taken part in a number of bank robberies for the purpose of building up a fund for their organization which they have yet to give a name to. To date, the organization has no money saved. All of the monies obtained from previous robberies has been spent on "expenses" of the group. The group was intending to donate a sizeable sum of money to the Black Panther Party (BPP) in the near future because the BPP is most similar in aims and philosophy of the loosely knit group of which VALERI is a part of. He stated that they intended to "take from those who have and give to those who haven't."

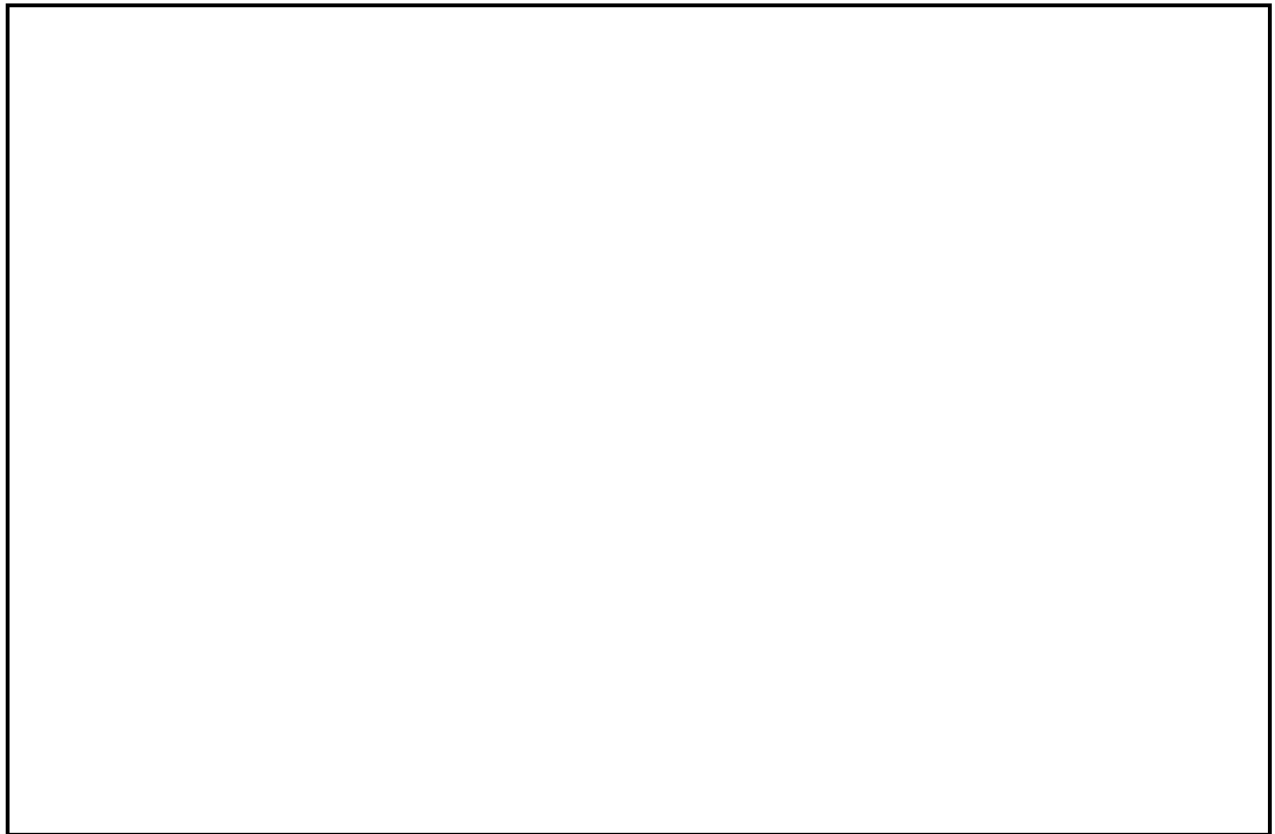

He went on to advise that after the bank robbery of September 23, 1970, he, STANLEY BOND, and WILLIAM GILDAY who is also known as LEFTY, had intended to travel to San Francisco, California which was to become a home base for this organization. Their intentions were to cause further destruction throughout the country. He advised that BOND is from California and liked San Francisco very much. This was one of the reasons they were travelling to San Francisco along with the reason that "the heat is on on the East Coast."

VALERI further advised that the organization of which he was a part of has no affiliations with any known New Left organizations such as Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) or the Weatherman Faction of SDS nor does it have any connections with the Black Panther Party (BPP) or any other basic revolutionary organization presently established in this country.

On September 24, 1970, ROBERT JOSEPH VALERI advised that the group with which he was affiliated in political activity prior to the robbery of the State Street Bank and Trust Company on September 23, 1970, participated in the following crimes.

As best he could recall, [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] STANLEY BOND who was somewhat the leader of this group [REDACTED] intended to be used for "the cause" of which VALERI was a part of.

On September 24, 1970 VALERI advised he met and knew STANLEY BOND and WILLIAM GILDAY while the three of them did time at the MCI at Walpole, Massachusetts. All of them were paroled in the Step Program. He and GILDAY were to attend Northeastern University at Boston and BOND was to attend Brandeis University at Waltham, Massachusetts. [REDACTED]

b7C

[REDACTED] were students at Brandeis. [REDACTED] had been active in the Woman's Rights Organization and the National Student Strike Information Center at Brandeis. BOND, GILDAY, [REDACTED] were against the military in the United States and wanted to disrupt the military. They had no political motives for this but seemed to believe in a police power state. BOND was the leader of the group. They told him there were more persons throughout the country that felt as they did. They said their group did not have any name or officers. They wanted to break down or impede the military structure and would do it with violence, arms, or explosives. They asked him if he wanted to be a part of the group and he decided he would. He is against violence and explosives being used against innocent people so he joined them. He joined them with the idea that he would learn all he could about the group and give the information to the Central Intelligence Agency or FBI so violence could be prevented.

On September 23, 1970, the five of them robbed the State Street Bank and Trust Company, Western Avenue, Brighton, Massachusetts. A policeman shot after the robbery died the next day. The money taken from the bank was not to be split up but was to be used by the group to further violence against the military. All of the persons in this group own, use and carry firearms.

The group wanted to get guns and explosives. They figured a National Guard Armory would give them what they wanted. They decided to try and get into the Armory at Newburyport, Massachusetts as it was isolated and it housed an engineering outfit that would logically have guns and explosives.

On September 17, 1970, he went to the Armory in Newburyport in the late PM of the day. A meeting was going on and he went in asking directions. A Sergeant answered his question at the door. From this point, he could see a safe or vault at the back of the Armory. None of them knew or had any help from anyone that was in this Massachusetts National Guard unit as military personnel or civilian.

On September 18, 1970, he went to the Armory at Newburyport well after it was dark and broke a window on the side of the Armory next to the motor pool. He broke the window with a gun. He broke the window and waited around to see if anyone showed up to indicate it was tied into an alarm system and no one showed up.

On the night of September 19, 1970, he, BOND, GILDAY, [redacted] drove to the vicinity of the Armory in Newburyport. They arrived there shortly after midnight of Saturday, so it was actually Sunday morning. They drove up there in a 1965 or 1966 Chevrolet Impala, green or blue in color, that had been stolen from Beacon Street, Boston.

GILDAY and [ ] were let out of the car first to take up positions as lookouts. All of them had walkie talkie radios to warn of danger. Then he and BOND got out and went to where he had previously broken the window. In the meantime, [ ] parked the car and took up a position as lookout. He went in first and looked the interior over in detail and took about 20 minutes. He was looking for guns and trying to find out if the vaults had any alarms on them. They brought in their own tools and they took them away with them. He forgot and left a black mangetic type flashlight attached to the fence that separates the Armory from the Motor Pool. The flashlight was left on a rail of the fence towards the back of the Armory on the Motor Pool side. b6 b7C

They went into the Supply Room first and obtained other tools that they might use. They took no uniforms. They did take four plunger type blasting machines. They next went to the Mosler safe in the rifle range. He knocked the dial off the safe and opened it in about five minutes. He does not recall that BOND took any ammunition with him. BOND did take some .30 caliber shells but he thinks he threw them around when they later started fires.

They found a small safe in the "CO's" Office and took it to the rifle range where they opened it. It contained papers and on reading them later, saw they were marked confidential and concerned riots and civil disturbances among other subjects. They found an empty five gallon can, and he filled it with gasoline from the Motor Pool. He tried to open the Mosler safe next to the Supply Room and was unable to open it. He knocked off the dial and handle. He tried to get into the safe through the wall of the Supply Room but gave up when he saw how thick the concrete was. If he had a torch, he could have opened this safe in 20 minutes.

BOND spread gasoline around in the rifle range and all over the Supply Room. Two drawers full of personnel files were thrown into the Supply Room. BOND kept two or three personnel files for later use. Those outside were called in.

He and BOND originally both came in through the broken window. The others came in through a rear door. They stole some gas masks. All of them wore cheap leather gloves. The material they had stolen was loaded into the rear of a small truck that was inside the Armory. They threw some racks that were in the truck onto the floor. The stuff they stole and put in the truck included the documents from the Commanding Officer's safe, a radio from the room where they got the personnel records, three radios from a cabinet in the rifle range, gas masks, and the four blasting machines.

Prior to leaving, BOND set the fires in the rifle range and the Supply Room. BOND used a mop soaked in gasoline to start the fire in the Supply Room. When he lit the mop and threw it in, an explosion threw it back out; and he had to throw it in again. They used tape from a demolition kit in the Supply Room to jump the wires on the truck.

BOND drove the truck away with [ ] in the back. The rest of them got into the Chevrolet and drove towards New Hampshire in thick fog. It was about 5:30 a.m. when they left.

They abandoned the truck on a dirt road near the Massachusetts - New Hampshire line and put everything in the Chevrolet. They abandoned the Chevrolet around 7:00 a.m. in the morning near the Massachusetts - New Hampshire line and loaded all of the stolen material into the trunk of [ ] legally owned Datsun. The five of them got in the car and they drove to the apartment that they were using at 337 Beacon Street, Boston, Massachusetts and they took all of the material into the house.

BOND always had a good supply of a tranquilizer called Librium with him and would give it to people when they got jittery.
